Montreal, March 16, 2020

The Inter-American Organization for Higher Education (IOHE) wishes to express its solidarity with all of its stakeholders in this period of uncertainty and the various difficulties that arise in the fight against COVID-19.

We support our members and all higher education institutions who have had their work and academic activities affected and provide moral support to those whose health is affected by this difficult situation.

In order to reduce our travel and any risk of contamination, we inform you that we have already canceled our participation in international events and conferences that were scheduled. With respect to our own institutional initiatives, all face-to-face IOHE activities planned between March and June have been postponed and we will be contacting event registrants directly with details.

We will monitor developments over the coming weeks and determine the best ways to continue our projects in this changing environment.

Thank you for your understanding and we are strengthening the appeal to all for the social accountability needed during the management of this unprecedented crisis.
